A FAREWELL TO LEIS

A few weeks ago we said, in this column, that women would not follow the long skirt style set by Parisian designers. We said that because short skirts were comfortable, sensible, healthy and a gesture of female independence, women would rebel against those French dreamers and their long skirts. Women, it is apparent now, have not so rebelled. They are not cherishing their sartorial symbols of independence. They are not turning up their noses at long skirts.

And they are not only wearing long skirts, but they are going back to long gloves, long hair, big hats and corsets.

It is all very confusing. Just about the time a man gets it figured out what a woman will do, she goes and does the other thing. He cannot outguess her. Yet can we weigh a woman's brain, examine it, classify it. You can dissect her physically and psychologically. And in no respect does the substance of her brain or mind seem to differ from man's.

But there is something which has so far eluded anatomists and psychologists that does make her different. Hence we confess, without shame or undue humiliation, that we were all wrong about the long skirts.

The fact is that long skirts have arrived and short skirts are going. It is a fact that must be faced, in masculine breasts at least, with a measure of melancholy resignation, the short skirt has revealed many legs that were bowed and many legs that were lumpy, many legs that bulged with good-filling and many legs that revealed to public scrutiny.

But by far the greatest number of legs that heaven and the fleeting styles enabled us to scan, brazenly or furtively, were things of beauty and a joy forever. They were graceful, shapely and pleasing. They warmed the heart. They injected an atmosphere of youth into the drab sameness of city streets. Lissome and lightness, they gladdened the day of the faded tired business man who lost some of his weariness when he beheld dimpled knees peering at him from beneath a tresser.

And as for corsets, what young man going a-courting would not rather bag the yielding form of a 1929 girl than grab an armful of whiteness that will irritate the unyielding waist of the girl of 1909?

But all things pass. Men have revelled in the frank, artistic delight of pretty legs and must now re-examine them. The dull days have come again. But it was lovely while it lasted.

Farewell, a long farewell, to legs.

THE AIR-CONSCIOUS ARTIST

It has been the greatest year in history for polar flying. Expeditions in both Arctic and Antarctic regions have achieved success. Organized search for lost parties has at the same time become a real industry.

In that search, flyers have demonstrated that the Arctic is passable. They have explored country that never was explored before. They have against odds that would have seemed incredible a few years ago.

Times of stress have brought progress in all ages. Under the spur of necessity, men will do superhuman things. But in so doing they provide the experience by which others may benefit. Their effort is cumulative.

The Arctic furnishes the shortest route from the Orient to the West. Dividends in the shape of aerial commerce across the world will be paid in the future from these daring exploits of today.

ST. ANDREW'S CHORAL MAKES PRESENTATION TO MISS HARRIS

At a special practice of the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Macleod, held at the Manor on Tuesday evening, the members of the choir paid honor to one of their number who is shortly leaving Macleod. Miss Harris has been a member of the choir for a number of years and has given to the choir most faithful service, and not to the choir only, but in all the activities of the church she took an active interest and was always ready to help in any work for the good of the church. It was J. E. Gardiner, as the eldest member of the choir, made the presentation, which consisted of a lovely hand bag. After making a few remarks on the choir and the church, the choir by the departure of Miss Harris, Mr. Gardiner read the following address:

"Macleod, Alberta, December 17th, 1929. Miss Annie Harris, Macleod."

Dear Miss Harris: On hearing of your expected departure from Macleod in the near future, we, the members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir, felt that we could not allow you to leave without in a small way expressing to you our appreciation of the faithful services you have rendered to the choir, and the church, by your work connected with the choir.

"Since you have been connected with the Church and Choir, in storm or shine, we could always depend on you being in your place in the choir both at the practices and the Sunday service. We will greatly miss your helpful presence and your ready and willing assistance in the furtherance of any work connected with the church."

"Our best wishes go with you, that the Divine Ruler may abundantly bless and keep you in the days to come. We ask you to accept this small token of our esteem, and trust that it will remind you of Old St. Andrew's, Macleod."

Miss Harris feelingly thanked the members for the unexpected gift. Mrs. (Rev.) Ferguson and Miss Lorne, served refreshments and a pleasant evening was spent.

MACLEOD ROYAL PURPLE ELECTS OFFICERS FOR 1930

The ladies of the Royal Purple Lodge, Macleod, at their regular meeting this week had their annual election of officers for 1930.

Besides the election of officers the lodge initiated two new members, who showed much interest in the work of the lodge in being maintained in securing new members. Honorary Royal Lady Mrs. Baker presided over the meeting and conducted the initiation.

The officers for 1930 will be as follows: Past Honored Royal Lady, Mrs. E. V. Baker, Honored Royal Lady, Mrs. Pauline Thompson, Treasurer, Mrs. F. Bailey, Conductor, Miss Marjorie Greenwood, Inner Guard, Mrs. M. Murphy, Outer Guard, Mrs. J. Gemmell, Three Year Trustee, Mrs. Dora McDonald, Two Year Trustee, Mrs. M. Greenwood, One Year Trustee, Mrs. M. Donohue, Planist, Mrs. F. J. Butler. The installation of officers will take place at the January meeting. Refreshments were served at the close.

WEALTH MEANT NOTHING

In their adolescent years the children of John D. Rockefeller Jr. were reared in luxury and the family's wealth, says John K. Winkler in his biography of the Standard Oil founder. When 15, John D. Jr. was amusing himself with an old, dilapidated motor car on his father's place at Seal Harbor, Me.

"A neighbor's boy happened along and turned up his nose. 'Hubb,' he exclaimed, 'why don't you get a motorcar?'"

John D. Jr. regarded the other with unfeigned astonishment. "A motor car?" he exclaimed. "Who do you think we are—the Vanderbilts?"—Kansas City Star.

THE DUAL PURPOSE COW

(Experimental Farms Note)
Some have questioned the existence of such an animal as a dual purpose cow. However, the fact remains that many Shorthorns of good beef conformation produce sufficient milk to return a profit to their owners aside from the value for beef and pete with the dairy breeds in average production of milk per head, nor as a rule does it pretend to compete with the straight beef breeds in the show ring, but he is a strong contender for highest position as measured by net returns at the end of the year.
The Shorthorn herd at the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, Sask., was started in 1921 with eight succeeding years two cows were made records approximating 8000 pounds; six cows have over 9000 pounds to their credit, and eleven have made records of over 10000 pounds. The herd has been selected by a great many visitors and no person has questioned the suitability of these animals for beef and pete waiting lists are on file continually for breeding stock. The records referred to were made without undue forcing. During the winter months

M. H. S. LITERARY SOCIETY JOYFUL MEETING PARTY AND DANCE

The Macleod High School Literary Society held a jolly skating party at the rink on Friday evening, finishing up with a dance in the assembly room of the school.
Among the invited guests present were the following trustees and their families: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McDonald, Dr. and Mrs. O. P. Farnett, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Day, the staff of the High School, Principal Miller, Miss Telford and Miss Stewart. Seats were provided for the invited guests at one end of the room. The room was beautifully decorated with the school colors, purple and white. Streamers were strung across the room and M. H. S. was displayed on the walls in the same colors. Great credit is due to Jean Day, Owen Hillard and Ruth Panter for the lovely scheme of decoration.

The dance opened with the Grand March at 10:45, and although many of the boy students were hiding in the dark corners of the hall at first later they joined the party and before supper everyone was stepping lively.

The refreshment committee, Jean Day, Owen Hillard and Margaret Miller provided a delicious lunch. The dance continued till about 2 a. m. and at the strains of "Home Sweet Home" loud sighs were heard from the assembled guests.

The High School Students are greatly indebted to the orchestra, consisting of Irene Young, piano; Glen Ringland, saxophone; Albert Hahn, banjo; Bruce Lane, violin; Andy McKay, drums; who supplied the music free of charge. The orchestra with one exception are present students or former students of the school.

Port holds much of the sterner stuff, as the students to the new Canadians their first words of welcome to this new land. Cards are now being written by each family, and their destination. Alberta has had her fair share of these settlers under one scheme or another. Hence it comes about that many women have written home telling their friends that they got a wonderful reception in Canada from the Red Cross and in describing the various kind services in the Nursery, have called the Society by the fitting name of "The Settlers' Friend." Visits are paid to families by Red Cross workers and in case of the sickness of the children, steps are taken to see that the necessary care is forthcoming. This further follow-up often results in a life long friendship between the newcomers and their provincial Red Cross, and in many cases the friendship shown is returned as hundred-fold and thus passed on to others.

THE SETTLER'S FRIEND

To many an one who crosses the sea to find a home in foreign parts, there is a great appeal in the Dominion of Canada, with its free life and boundless opportunities. Landing at the ports of St. John or Quebec or Halifax, the stranger has the first taste of the new life with all its new ways and conditions as he disembarks at the busy ports. But there is a welcome awaiting him of which he was not aware. Among the many Societies interested in the newcomers and their welfare, there stands pre-eminently the Canadian Red Cross. Port Nurseries are in full swing throughout the year, and many a thousand strangers pass through the friendly rooms fragrant with hot tea, and filled with tired families of Mothers, Fathers and train-travelled children. The Red Cross Nurses have their hands full with many and varied duties. Refreshment first and foremost for the little folk at small tables. Advice to the anxious mothers to the care and the health of an ailing one. Assistance to a worried looking father with much luggage and a perplexed look as he thinks of a week on the train with his large family. Life to the Nurse at the

by the finance committee were passed for payment. Other routine business occupied the time of the council.

CANADA MAY ADOPT HOOVER SCHEME TO PREVENT IDLENESS

Ottawa, Dec. 17, (Special to The Times).—Will Canada's governments, federal, provincial and municipal, with Canadian railroads and Canadian industry unite to maintain better levels and to defeat unemployment in the Dominion?

This problem which is now receiving deep study here, has been precipitated by the determined effort of President Hoover in the United States to build up a national and effective defense against business depression and unemployment.

He proposes to overturn the old order of procedure; to spend less in times of rampant business and building revenues, to build up reserves, and then, when business comes, to take up the slack by expanding public works, by railway works and through construction activities in general.

Mr. Hoover obviously foresees less buoyant conditions threatening now. To meet them he has called in the ranks of bankers, urging them to contract credits no more than is essential to safety. He has called in railway and industrial managers and urged them to proceed with planned expansions, even with those contemplated for later materialization.

His message to the Governors of the 48 States explains his thought. It says:

"With a view to giving strength to the present economic situation and providing for the absorption of any unemployment which might result from the present disturbed conditions, I have asked for collective action of industry in the expansion of construction activities and in stabilization of wages. As I have publicly stated, one of the largest factors that can be brought to bear in that of the energetic, yet prudent pursuit of public works by the Federal and State, municipal and county authorities."

"The Federal Government will exert itself to the utmost within its own province and I should like to feel that I have the co-operation of yourself and the municipal, county and other local officials in the same direction. It would be helpful if railway, street, public building and other construction of this type could be speeded up and advanced in such fashion as to further employment."

The response that far appears to have been unanimously favorable to his appeal. Four national farmers' organizations, being the earliest to enlist their support. In the case of farmers, as with individual industries, non-inflation of interest rates was essential to the success of their co-operation.

The whole movement is being prosecuted on the theory that, though some measure of unemployment is inescapable, the general situation can be controlled, that the money spent in such ways finds its way back through the channels it has been loaned it. In short money runs on an endless chain. The wages paid out on what may be work otherwise prematurely undertaken employs not only those who receive it first, but through them, maintains others in most remote occupations and keep the wheels of both industry and commerce geared up, ready to take advantage of the next natural boom in business.

The conditions which actuate Mr. Hoover in the United States have their representation in Canada and his remedy is being studied for its applicability to this country. A less drastic budget system for Government in Canada presents difficulties. Works not completed within the fiscal year for which the money was voted must again be authorized before they can be proceeded with or completed. If the Hoover plan proves really effective in overcoming the annual budget could be found. The real trouble here is that no community is willing to wait for depressed times for authorized works.
